PREFACE

A systematic examination of price movements is vital for understanding the functioning of an economy and the welfare of its people. Fluctuations in prices reveal not only the interaction of demand and supply but also broader economic forces, consumption patterns, and market responses. A detailed study of these changes enables policymakers, researchers, and planners to identify emerging trends, evaluate market stability, and develop informed strategies for intervention.

The Department of Economics & Statistics has long been engaged in the structured collection, classification, and analysis of price data across different sectors. Prices are categorised under wholesale, retail, and miscellaneous groups, ensuring extensive coverage of both essential commodities and non-conventional items. This systematic approach provides a strong foundation for generating key indicators that offer insights into both short-term variations and long-term price behaviour.

This publication, "Report on Analysis of Miscellaneous Prices – 2024", presents the trends of a wide range of commodities, including food items, household essentials, scrap materials, waste paper, spices, coir products, and coconut-related items. By analysing 50 essential commodities, 28 supplementary items, and weekly observations of selected goods, the report delivers a comprehensive overview of miscellaneous price patterns.

The successful preparation of this report is the result of the collective efforts of the dedicated officers of the Price Division. Their commitment, accuracy, and teamwork have been instrumental in bringing out this publication.

CEREALS

Rice (red)open market Matta (₹ / Kg)

The yearly average prices of Rice (Red) Matta in the open market show noticeable variation across districts in Kerala. Prices range from a low of ₹46.00 per kg in Malappuram to a high of ₹56.00 per kg in Pathanamthitta, indicating a moderate inter-district price spread. Northern districts such as Kasargod (₹46.17), Wayanad (₹47.88), Palakkad (₹47.90) and Thrissur (₹48.00) generally report lower prices. In contrast, several southern and midland districts including Ernakulam (₹55.42), Idukki (₹55.66), Kottayam (₹55.56), Alappuzha (₹55.12) and Kollam (₹55.00) show higher yearly averages. Thiruvananthapuram records a moderate price level at ₹49.65 per kg, while Kozhikode stands slightly higher at ₹51.84. Overall, the data highlights clear regional price variations for Matta rice across Kerala, with southern districts exhibiting comparatively higher prices and northern districts maintaining relatively lower averages. (Detailed table is attached in PRICE STATISTICS2024 Page No:618-659)

Rice(red)open market Nadan(₹ / Kg)

The yearly average prices of Rice (Red) Nadan in the open market show considerable variation across the reporting districts in Kerala. The available data indicate that Pathanamthitta records the highest price at ₹56.00 per kg, followed closely by Idukki at ₹55.04, highlighting higher procurement costs and limited local availability in these regions. Moderate price levels are observed in Wayanad (₹48.94), Kollam (₹48.97), Palakkad (₹47.90) and Thrissur (₹47.67). Kannur, with a lower price of ₹42.00 per kg, stands out as the most affordable among the districts with available data. Several districts, including Kasargod, Kozhikode, Malappuram, Ernakulam, Kottayam, Alappuzha, and Thiruvananthapuram, have no reported values. Overall, the price pattern shows that southern highland districts tend to have higher Nadan rice prices, while northern regions exhibit comparatively lower averages wherever data is available(Detailed table is attached in PRICE STATISTICS2024 Page No:618-659)

Rice(red)open market Chamba(₹ / Kg)

The yearly average prices of Rice (Red) – Chamba – in the open market show limited but clear variation among the few districts for which data is available. Palakkad reports the highest price at ₹54.95 per kg. Thiruvananthapuram records a moderate price of ₹48.63, while Kollam shows the lowest price at ₹45.00 per kg. For most districts—including Kasargod, Kannur, Wayanad, Kozhikode, Malappuram, Thrissur, Ernakulam, Idukki, Kottayam, Alappuzha, and Pathanamthitta—the absence of data indicates either limited market availability of the Chamba variety or lack of regular reporting. Overall, the available figures highlight a noticeable price gap between Palakkad and the southern districts, reflecting regional differences in market dynamics for this specific rice variety(Detailed table is attached in PRICE STATISTICS2024 Page No:618-659)

Red Seedless (₹ /Kg)

The yearly average price of Red Seedless per kilogram shows that Wayanad has the highest price at 366.10, followed by Kannur at 180.00 and Palakkad at 167.50. No data is available for the other districts. This suggests that Wayanad, likely due to higher-quality or limited availability, commands a significantly higher price compared to the other districts with recorded data. (Detailed table is attached in PRICE STATISTICS2024 Page No: 714-745)

Red with seed (₹ /Kg)

The yearly average price of Red with Seed per kilogram varies across districts. Idukki has the highest price at 251.24, followed by Ernakulam at 243.56 and Kottayam at 217.79. Palakkad records 171.83, Kasargod 140.00, Pathanamthitta 112.08, and Kannur 100.00. Several districts, including Wayanad, Kozhikode, Malappuram, Thrissur, Alapuzha, Kollam, and Thiruvananthapuram, have no data available. This indicates that the mango is most expensive in the central high-range districts, likely reflecting quality, demand, and limited supply in those areas. ## Cocoa - prices(₹ /Qtl)

The yearly average prices of cocoa show significant variation across centres and product types. Dry cocoa beans recorded the highest prices, with Kalady (46,000) and Mananthavady (46,442.31) showing exceptionally high values, followed closely by Muvattupuzha (44,692.31). These centres primarily deal with fully dried beans, which command a premium due to higher quality and longer shelf life. In contrast, cocoa beans in their regular form reported moderate prices, ranging from 10,140.38 in Kothamangalam to 12,148.94 in Meenachil (Pala). Cocoa with husk showed the lowest average price at 4,782.35, reflecting its lower processing level and reduced market value. Cocoa wet collected from Idukki recorded an average of 12,644.23, positioned between raw and dry forms. Overall, the data clearly indicates that the price increases with processing level, with dry beans fetching the highest value across markets. ## Monthly retail price of salt (₹ /kg)

The monthly retail price of salt shows moderate variation across districts, mainly influenced by brand differences and local market conditions. Among districts selling the Sprinkle brand, prices generally range between 12.50 and 16.00 per kg. Idukki records the lowest average price at 12.50, while Kannur reports the highest at 16.00, indicating noticeable regional variation despite the same brand. Districts such as Ernakulam (15.67), Kozhikode (15.58), and Thrissur (15.25) also fall on the higher end of the price spectrum. Palakkad, which sells the Shakthi brand, shows a comparatively lower average of 13.00, suggesting brand-specific pricing differences. Kasargod, selling the Sugam brand, records a mid-range price of 14.92. Overall, the data reflects stable pricing with slight inter-district differences, driven by brand variety and local supply-demand factors. ### Coir –Wholesale Price (₹ /Qtl)

The wholesale prices of various coir varieties across major centres show notable fluctuations throughout the year, largely influenced by production cycles, demand variations, and local market conditions. Anjengo 240 fibre prices at Kaniyapram remain stable at 8,800 from January to June before dropping to 8,300 from July onwards, while Pachalloor exhibits a significant increase, rising sharply from 8,800 in the first half of the year to 12,000 from August to December. Mangadan 80 at Thevalakkara remains steady at 4,250 up to March, later increasing to 5,000 from August and reaching 5,500 in December. Vaikom Yarn varieties show moderate variations: Yarn-180 sees a rise from 4,250 to 5,000 from August onward, whereas Yarn-160 at Poochackal and T. V. Puram shows price dips and increases depending on seasonal production trends. Beypore Un-retted and Retted fibres in Kozhikode display wide fluctuations, with some varieties peaking at 6,200 in August before dropping again. Coir varieties like Quilandy Un-retted and RETTA Quilandy show mixed trends, with certain months experiencing sharp jumps due to supply disruptions. KMRY Un-retted-240 shows a sudden rise to 8,700 in August before stabilizing. Muppiriyam fibre across Pallapuram, Purang, and Kadavanad reveals high volatility, with prices reaching up to 8,700 in several months. Vettoor (Special) displays a steep mid-year decline followed by a recovery towards December. Vaikom Yarn-140 across Clappana, Alumpeedika, Cherthala, and other centres shows incomplete data but indicates rising price movements between October and December. ## PRICE OF COCONUT HUSK (RAW AND ROTTED ) (₹ /1000 Nos)

The prices of coconut husk, both raw and rotted, showed a clear upward trend throughout the year, with notable fluctuations between the two categories. Raw husk prices remained relatively stable during the first half of the year, ranging between 1,157.69 and 1,203.85, but began to rise sharply from August onwards, reaching 1,472.22 by December. This increase indicates a growing demand or reduced supply toward the latter months. In contrast, rotted husk prices showed minimal movement during the early months, remaining constant at 2,900.00 until May, after which a gradual rise occurred, reaching 2,950.00 in June. A significant jump was observed from July onwards, with prices increasing to 3,133.33 and stabilizing at 3,266.67 from August through December. Overall, raw husk experienced a more dynamic price fluctuation, while rotted husk showed a steady upward movement, reflecting possible shifts in processing costs, availability, or market demand over the year.
